The image displays a handwriting practice exercise for the letter 'a'. On the left, a large dotted lowercase 'a' is shown on a set of three horizontal lines (top, middle, bottom). Four blue arrows originate from this large letter and point to four rows of smaller examples on the right. Each row consists of a dotted lowercase 'a' on the left, followed by a thick blue arrow pointing to the right, and then a dotted lowercase 'a' on the right. The first row shows the 'a' starting with a vertical stroke from the top line down to the middle line, then a counter-clockwise curve from the middle line to the bottom line, and finally a short diagonal stroke from the bottom line to the right. The second row shows the 'a' starting with a vertical stroke from the top line down to the middle line, then a counter-clockwise curve from the middle line to the bottom line, and finally a short diagonal stroke from the bottom line to the right. The third row shows the 'a' starting with a vertical stroke from the top line down to the middle line, then a counter-clockwise curve from the middle line to the bottom line, and finally a short diagonal stroke from the bottom line to the right. The fourth row shows the 'a' starting with a vertical stroke from the top line down to the middle line, then a counter-clockwise curve from the middle line to the bottom line, and finally a short diagonal stroke from the bottom line to the right.

The image displays a handwriting practice sheet for the cursive letter 'g'. On the left side, a large dotted 'g' is shown on a set of three horizontal lines. Five blue arrows point from this large 'g' to five rows of smaller dotted 'g's. Each row consists of a dotted 'g' on a set of three horizontal lines, followed by a blue arrow pointing to the same 'g' joined to another 'g' on the next line. The bottom row is highlighted with a thick blue line.

The image shows a large dotted uppercase letter 'X' on a four-line grid. Four blue arrows point from different parts of the 'X' to smaller examples of the letter in different styles. Each example consists of a dotted letter on a four-line grid, followed by a blue arrow pointing to a cursive version of the same letter on a four-line grid.

- Top arrow: Points to a dotted 'X' with a starting dot at the top line. The cursive version has a starting dot at the top line and a loop that goes down to the bottom line.
- Second arrow: Points to a dotted 'X' with a starting dot at the top line. The cursive version has a starting dot at the top line and a loop that goes down to the middle line.
- Third arrow: Points to a dotted 'X' with a starting dot at the middle line. The cursive version has a starting dot at the middle line and a loop that goes down to the bottom line.
- Bottom arrow: Points to a dotted 'X' with a starting dot at the bottom line. The cursive version has a starting dot at the bottom line and a loop that goes up to the middle line.

Handwriting practice sheet for the letter 'a'. The sheet shows a large dotted 'a' on the left, which is broken down into four smaller rows of practice. Each row consists of a dotted 'a' on the left, a blue arrow pointing right, and a dotted 'a' on the right. The dotted 'a's are positioned between the middle and bottom lines of the set of three horizontal lines. The first row shows the 'a' with a vertical dashed line and a horizontal dashed line at the top, indicating stroke order. The second row shows the 'a' with a vertical dashed line and a horizontal dashed line at the top, indicating stroke order. The third row shows the 'a' with a vertical dashed line and a horizontal dashed line at the top, indicating stroke order. The fourth row shows the 'a' with a vertical dashed line and a horizontal dashed line at the top, indicating stroke order.
